There is no doubt that the Pan Peninsula towers in the Docklands area are amongst the most striking residential properties in London. The object consists of two towers, the taller one measuring 147m and comprising 48 storeys, and the smaller one measuring 122m with 38 storeys. The high expectations of the Pan Peninsula's developers and architects don't stop short of the bathroom. All level-access showers feature CeraLine shower channels.
