

Vista House, Stuttgart

Product: CeraLine shower channel

Project: Vista House

Location: Stuttgart, Germany

Architect: Alexander Brenner Architects

Year: 2012

Vista House is an urban detached house in Stuttgart, designed and planned by Alexander Brenner Architects. In line with many other Brenner's designs, Vista House is characterised by bright white, sculptured geometrical façades and cubic design. The integrated planning - spanning structural engineering, spatial and exterior design, as well as furniture, lighting and other specialist planning - is another common feature. The bathroom areas were fitted with CeraLine shower channels, which operate discreetly and integrate into the room almost invisibly, thanks to its purist design.

Photography

All photographs: zoey braun FOTOGRAFIE, Stuttgart